TUNED TO OLD FRIEND CARDUI

Am Soon Was Perfectly Well and Strong and Better Than She Had Ever Been, Says Kentucky Lady.

Nashville, Ky.—Mrs. C. F. Askins, of this place, writes: "About 15 years ago I had got into a run-down state, my back ached all the time, felt weak, my bones seemed to ache all over. I had weighed only 104 lbs. when I married, and never had been right robust since I reached womanhood, but after my marriage, I seemed to get worse all the time for two years. Until at this time my mother's wife, advised me to take Cardui. Therefore, I began taking it, and in a short while, I began to improve, my health and strength began to be put up, and also my flesh.

After my first child's birth, over two years he passed by, but the... didn't appear. My husband got me some medicine from our doctor, which did me no good, to be intended it to bring the... about, for he said the blood was going to my head and causing it to ache, which too helped to make me so dizzy... So turned to my old friend Cardui and began taking it and... soon I was perfect well and strong, gradually gained flesh until I weighed about 135 lbs., and was so stout and strong, better than, ever had been."

Cautel, used by thousands of women, and prescribed by physicians, must be a good medicine. Try it.—Adv.

Country Schools Can't Keep Teachers.
Lincoln, Neb., Feb. 23.—Several school executives and teachers of schools of central and western states who began a conference here yesterday, deplored the fact that trained teachers cannot be kept in rural schools in many instances longer than a year or two. Higher salaries in other occupations were given as one reason. The main cause of the LUCILLE YOUNGE, the beautiful dark-haired actress whose work in heavy dramatic roles is well known to picture audiences, and whose most recent spectacular appearance was as Mary Magdalene in "Intolerance," has become a member of the American Film company's contingent at Santa Barbara, Calif.

Miss Younge's first appearance is to be in the feminine heavy role in William Russell's future release, "High Play." Mr. Russell and his supporting cast are now at work on this production.

Miss Younge was born in Lyons, France, and she possesses all of the artfulness of the French woman. She is exceedingly good looking, with masses of blue-black hair, expressive eyes and mouth, and wonderful hands and arms. In this picture, Miss Younge wears a golden snake bracelet which was given her by a French noblewoman who was deeply interested in Miss Younge's work when the young actress was playing in her native land.

INGENIOUS GLADYS

Miss Gladys Hulette, popular Pathé heroine, qualifies as a thoroughly modern burglar in "Fate and Fate's Beggar." The heroine she impersonates is sent to recover lost papers from a locked room. It was her own idea to poke a vacuum cleaner through a transom and inhale them.

Marlin Sals of Kalem, who is a large landholder in Utah, is placing most of her savings in her big ranch near Lund. Miss Sals is the first of several motion picture actresses to get land in Utah. Helen Holmes was a close second.

Lamb a Silent Hero.

Devotes 40 Years of His Life to Inmate Sister Who Had Killed Their Mother.

BY MADIE O. C. PETERS.
(Copyright 1916 by Madison C. Peters.)

NOWHERE in the history of the world can there be found a friendship more deeply rooted, full of quiet fondness and substantial devotion than that of Charles Lamb and his sister Mary.

Charles, with the heroic fortitude of a martyr, resisted all temptations to marry and devoted his life to his sister Mary, who had inherited the family curse of insanity.

Mary was ten years older than Charles and loved him with an affection combining a mother's care, a sister's tenderness and a friend's fervent sympathy.

Charles Lamb was born in London, February 10, 1775. At an early age he and his sister Mary were forced to support an insane father and a paralytic mother—Charles earning a scanty living with his pen and Mary taking what sewing she could get.

Insanity appears to both.

At 21 Charles showed symptoms of insanity and was forced to spend some time in an institution. A few months after his release, Mary, worn down to a state of extreme nervous misery by attention to needle work all day and by watching her mother at night, broke into uncontrollable insanity, and seizing a knife from the table spread for dinner, stabbed her mother through the heart. The coroner's jury brought in a verdict of "lunacy."

Mary was immediately put into a mad-house, but as she grew better Charles expected her to leave her confinement. He was forced to make a solemn agreement to make her his charge for life, and to watch over her that she should do no harm.

Mary's insanity returned from time to time; during these periods she was again confined in an asylum, but her brother always eagerly reclaimed her as soon as she was better. When she was returned to him he was almost happy again, in spite of the shadow called up by the memory of what had happened, as well as by the uncertainty of the future. His clerkship in the South Sea House brought him 100 pounds a year, and there was a maiden aunt as well as the father to be cared for. While he had to watch his sister, he had to amuse his father by criticism. As he had time he devoted himself to literature, which brought him about 70 pounds a year.

Forty Years of Self-Sacrifice.

The annals of insanity there is no story so touching and tender as the history of those 40 years of steady toil Charles went through. He always wrote of her as his better self, or wiser self, a generous benefactress, of whom he was hardly worthy. Many were the nights spent in anxious watchings. Sleepless and harassed with her dangerous vagaries, he rose early in the morning and went to his desk and when released from his labors he ran in hot haste to see that she was still safe. Many were the hand-to-hand encounters he had with her in her dangerous hours, but no murmur ever escaped his lips. When she became very bad he took her back to the asylum.

A Silent Hero.

Charles Lamb was one of those silent heroes who have no monument by which to commemorate their brave deeds; only the simple stone that marks the final resting place of these two, in one grave, conveys the beautiful character of this man who gave up all for his sister, who in turn gave up all for him.

Lamb's one hope was to outlive his sister, but this was denied him. He left her well provided for. Lamb's greatest work is his "Essays of Elia."

Lamb's "Tales of Shakespeare" have probably been read by us many a time, as the popular Grimm's Fairy Tales. This book was written by the brother and sister jointly. Charles Lamb died from a fall, which injured his face, in 1835. His sister died 12 years later.

In her sunset walks she would invariably lead her friends towards the churchyard where Charles was laid.

Doctor Tells How To Strengthen
Eyesight 50 per cent In One
Week's Time In Many Instances

A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Use at Home.

Philadelphia, Pa. Do you wear glasses? Are you a victim of eye strain or other eye weaknesses? If so, you will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis there is a real hope for you. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored through the principle of this wonderful free prescription. One man says, after trying it: "I was almost blind; could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without any glasses and my eyes do not water any more. At night they would pain dreadfully; now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seems clear. I can even read fine print without glasses." It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by following the simple rules. Here is the prescription: Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bor-Opto tablets. Drop one Bor-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and allow to dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and inflammation will quickly disappear. If your eyes are bothering you, even a little, take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have been saved if they had cared for their eyes in time.

NOTE: Another prominent Physician to whom the above article was submitted, said: "Bor-Opto is a very remarkable remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known to eminent eye specialists and widely prescribed by them. The manufacturer guarantees it to strengthen eyesight 50 per cent. In one week's time in many instances or refund the money it can be obtained from any good druggist and is one of the very few preparations I feel should be kept on hand for regular use in almost every family." It is sold in El Paso by Kelly & Pollard and other druggists.—Adv.
